Indigenous Peoples Law and Policy Program
Distinguished Speaker Series

Join the Indigenous Peoples Law and Policy (IPLP) Program at the James E. Rogers College of Law to meet, learn from, and network with some of our most distinguished and professionally accomplished alumni as they share their knowledge and experiences about the cutting edge work they are doing for their tribal clients and organizations, their perspectives on emerging issues in Indian law and policy, and tips for success in your career as an Indian rights lawyer after law school.

Lunch Provided

Friday, October 7, 12:15–1:30 P.M.
James E. Rogers College of Law, Faculty Lounge (Room 237)

Richard Guest (JD, ’94)

Richard Guest is the managing attorney for the Native American Rights Fund (NARF) Washington, D.C., office, and is the lead attorney for NARF on the Tribal Supreme Court Project, based on the principle that a coordinated and structured approach to tribal advocacy before the U.S. Supreme Court is vitally necessary to preserve tribal sovereignty.

Prior to joining NARF in 2003, Richard was a senior associate attorney with Troutman Sanders LLP, and before moving to Washington, D.C. in 2001, he worked as an attorney for the Skokomish Indian Tribe and as an associate attorney for the Morisset, Schlosser law firm in Seattle, Washington. Richard obtained his juris doctorate from the University of Arizona-College of Law in 1994, receiving the Roger C. Henderson Award as the Distinguished Graduating Senior. His thesis, Intellectual Property Rights and Native American Tribes was published in the American Indian Law Review.